UAF's proposed Life Sciences Innovation and Learning Facility is UA's top priority for new construction. Learn more about what's planned and why this facility is urgently needed for our students and for Alaska's premier life science research program.

Discovering Alaska - A Summer Lecture Series will feature a lecture by Brian Barnes on the animal adaptations to cold. The seminar will be June 10, 7-8 p.m., in Schaible Auditorium on the UAF campus. Barnes will present the differing ways that animals survive the cold, dark, and long winters. He will talk about the strategies of wood frogs, insects, ground squirrels and black bears.

The series is presented by UAF Summer Sessions in cooperation with the Institute of Arctic Biology, UAF Center for Research Services, International Arctic Research Center, Geophysical Institute, and the UA Geography Program.

The American Society of Mammalogists 2009 annual meeting will be hosted by IAB and the UA Museum of the North on the UAF campus June 24-28. Meeting co-chairs are Kris Hundertmark and Link Olson and the coordinator is Hayley Lanier.
